Mr. Max Millikan
Assistant Director
Center Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C.

Dear Max:

I am writing to you in relation to obtaining some economists to work at the National War College for a week next September. I am afraid that some of those who were available last year will be unable to come this time. In view of the special qualifications which are required for the work done at the College, I always find it difficult to think of suitable people. I am just wondering whether you have any suggestions. They are also interested in one man who would stay at the College throughout the first term. For this job I also cannot think of any suitable candidate. The salary paid for such a man would be at the rate of ten thousand a year.

It was certainly very nice to have had dinner with you last Friday and I hope that we can do this again when I shall be in Washington next.

Sincerely,

Klaus
